

Choosing beneficiaries for your retirement assets

The Setting Every Community Up for Retirement Enhancement (SECURE) Act has changed the distribution options for some beneficiaries. It is important that you understand these new rules because many individuals don't know that how the assets are distributed depends on the beneficiaries selected. You know that Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) and qualified employer sponsored retirement plans (QRPs) provide a tax-efficient means to save for retirement. With proper planning, they can also provide a legacy for your heirs. Did you know that who you name determines how long the assets can stay in the Inherited IRA and how quickly they may potentially be taxed? That's why proper planning is important: so you can affect the way your retirement savings will be inherited.

Three categories of beneficiaries

The SECURE Act has changed the distribution options for some beneficiaries. You are asked to make a very important decision on each retirement plan you have—who to designate as your beneficiary(ies). Before making that designation, you need to understand that the category your named beneficiary is included in will determine their distribution rules.

Non-Designated Beneficiary (NDB)	Designated Beneficiary (DB)	Eligible Designated Beneficiary (EDB)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Estate</li> <li>Non-qualified trust</li> <li>Charity</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Non-spouse individual</li> <li>Qualified "look-through" trust</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Surviving spouses</li> <li>Disabled or chronically ill individuals</li> <li>Individuals not more than 10 years younger, the same age as, or older than IRA owner</li> <li>Child of the account owner who has not reached the age of majority</li> </ul>

Primary and contingent beneficiaries

You may have noticed that you can name "primary" and "contingent (secondary)" beneficiaries to your IRA. The primary beneficiary to your IRA is entitled to receive the inherited balance first. The contingent beneficiary inherits the funds only if the primary beneficiary(ies) disclaims or dies prior to the IRA owner. You can select one or more primary and/or contingent beneficiaries. In the case of multiple beneficiaries, you can designate the percentage each receives.

Spouse versus non-spouse beneficiaries

Naming your spouse—Naming your spouse as beneficiary may be a natural step, but there are additional reasons why this may make sense for many married couples. When an IRA passes directly to a spouse, in most cases, the assets will have the advantages of bypassing probate and qualifying for the unlimited marital deduction. Your spouse also has the right to treat the IRA as their own, by rolling into an IRA in their name.

A spouse beneficiary who inherits a QRP can roll these assets to their own Traditional and or Roth IRA or make a direct trustee-to-trustee transfer to an Inherited Traditional or an Inherited Roth IRA. Non-designated Roth account assets rolled over to a Roth IRA or transferred to an Inherited Roth IRA would be considered a conversion from the plan to the Roth or Inherited Roth IRA, triggering taxes on any taxable amount converted.

Naming a non-spouse—When you designate a non-spouse beneficiary, such as children, grandchildren, or friends, they are not allowed to roll the assets into an IRA in their name. Instead, they may transfer the money to an Inherited IRA to continue the tax-advantaged account status.

A non-spouse beneficiary who inherits a QRP can directly roll the plan balance to an Inherited Traditional IRA. They can directly roll designated Roth account assets to Inherited Roth IRA.

They can also choose to convert QRP balances to an Inherited Roth IRA, triggering taxes on any amount included in gross income.

Other non-spouse beneficiaries

Entities such as trusts, estates, or charities may be named as a beneficiary but often they are not the best option. When a non-qualified trust, a charity or an estate is named as the IRA beneficiary; the options for distribution are limited.

Beneficiary distribution options

The following table summarizes the options a beneficiary has if you have died either before or after your required beginning date (RBD), generally April 1 following the year you reach age 72.

Beneficiary category	Life expectancy	Open an Inherited IRA 5-year rule	10-year rule
Designated beneficiary:
– Non-spouse			X
– Qualified trust			X
Eligible designated beneficiary:
– Spouse	X		X
– Disabled or chronically ill individuals	X		X
– Individuals not more than 10 years younger, the same age as, or older than IRA owner	X		X
– Child of the account owner who has not reached age of majority <sup>1</sup>	X		X
Non-designated beneficiary (owner died before RBD):
– Estate/non-qualified trust		X
– Charity		X
Non-designated beneficiary (owner died after RBD):
– Estate/non-qualified trust	X <sup>2</sup>
– Charity	X <sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>The age of majority has not been defined yet. RMDs based on owner's age in year of death, divisor reduced by one each subsequent year.

Designated beneficiary

Under the SECURE Act, these beneficiaries will now be subject to the 10-year rule.

10-year rule—This rule is applicable to both Traditional and Roth IRAs. The Inherited IRA must be emptied by the 10th year following the year of your death. No distributions are required before the 10th year. Depending on the size of the account, a beneficiary may want to spread distributions over the entire 10-year period.

Eligible designated beneficiary

This category has the most favorable distribution options. Beneficiaries can take required minimum distributions (RMDs) from their Inherited IRA based on their own life expectancies. The life expectancy option is often referred to as the stretch IRA strategy.

- Except for the minor child of the IRA owner, EDB options are the same as before the SECURE Act and are detailed on page 3.
- Minor children of the IRA owner can take RMDs based on their life expectancy until they reach the age of majority. Then they are subject to the 10-year rule.

Non-designated beneficiary

This category includes estates, charities, and non-qualified trusts. The options available to them are dependent on when they die—either before or after your RBD. If you die on or after you reach your RBD, RMDs are based on your age in the year of death and the divisor is reduced by one in each subsequent year. If you die before your RBD, the 5-year rule is followed.

5-year rule—Empty the Inherited IRA by December 31 of the year containing the fifth anniversary of your death.

Inherited IRA distribution options for EDB:

- Life expectancy: This option is available for Inherited Roth and Inherited Traditional IRAs. The Wells Fargo Clearing Services, (WFCS) LLC IRA Custodial Agreement default is the Life Expectancy option. Your beneficiary may be subject to an IRS 50% excise tax for every dollar under-distributed.
- Non-spouse beneficiary: This beneficiary will take annual RMDs but they can always take more than that amount. RMDs are based on their life expectancy using a divisor from the IRS Single Life Table and the prior year-end IRA value, on a term-certain basis. Term-certain means that one is subtracted from the original divisor in each subsequent year. These RMDs will begin the year following your death.

Non spouse RMD Formula

- Spouse beneficiary: Establishing an Inherited IRA when your spouse is under age 59½ allows them to avoid the 10% additional tax on distributions that they might have if the assets were taken from their own IRA. They always have the ability to transfer the Inherited IRA to their own IRA, even if they have been taking distributions. RMDs from this Inherited IRA will start:
  - Beginning the year you would have reached age 72, or
  - Beginning in the year following your death, if you died on or after your RBD.

Spouse RMD Formula

$$\frac{\text{Prior Year-End Value}}{\text{Single Life Table divisor}} = \text{RMD}$$

Annual RMD calculations are based on your surviving spouse's life expectancy using a divisor from the IRS Single Life Table, the prior year-end IRA value, and utilizes the recalculation method. The recalculation method uses a new divisor from the table each year.

Rollover/Transfer to own IRA—Only a spouse can roll over or transfer the funds into an IRA in his/her own name. An IRA keeps the funds in a tax-advantaged account and defers income taxes, if due, until distributions are taken. IRA distribution rules will apply based on the surviving spouse's age—meaning no RMDs from their Traditional IRA until he/she reaches age 72 and no RMDs from their Roth IRA. However, it may make sense for your surviving spouse to open an Inherited IRA because distributions taken from their own IRA, prior to age 59½, may incur the 10% additional tax.

Please note that the stretch IRA strategy is designed for investors who will not need the money in the account for their own retirement. There is no guarantee that there will be assets remaining in the account at the time of the IRA owner's death.<sup>3</sup>

Other options

These distributions choices are available to beneficiaries.

- Disclaim: If a beneficiary does not need or want the asset, they can disclaim, or refuse, all or a portion of the assets generally, within nine months after your death. The person who disclaims is considered to have predeceased the IRA owner and cannot dictate who will inherit the assets. If the per stirpes option has been selected then the disclaimed assets will go to that beneficiary's lineal descendants. If not, then the IRA passes to any other named primary beneficiaries or, if none, then to the named contingent beneficiary(ies). The IRA default beneficiaries may be used if there are no valid beneficiaries on file.

The beneficiary defaults on a WFCS IRA are:

- First, a surviving spouse
- Second, surviving children (as defined under state law)
- Third, the IRA holder's estate

- Lump-sum: This strategy will exhaust the entire account in one distribution, with retirement assets losing their tax-advantaged status. Taxes will be due on the taxable portion of the distribution in the year received and may place the beneficiary in a higher tax bracket. Once a non-spouse beneficiary chooses to take a lump-sum distribution, it cannot be undone. In this situation, a spouse beneficiary would have 60 days to roll over the inherited assets into his or her own IRA if they meet the rollover requirements.
